

STUDENT FELLOWS 2012-2013

Rachel Steinman

Rachel Steinman earned her undergraduate degree at the University of Florida. She double majored in Political Science, with an International Relations Certificate, and History, magna cum laude honors. She also received a minor degree in the field of Art History. She is currently finishing her J.D. at the George Washington University Law School.

Ms. Steinman is an active member of various student organizations, including being the founder and president of the GW Law School's Antitrust Law Association, treasurer for the National Security Law Association, and the Student Bar Association Financial Comptroller and Assistant Director of Elections. She is also a Research Assistant for Professor William E. Kovacic and a Dean's Fellow at GW Law. Currently, she is also a law clerk at the U.S. Merit Systems Protection Board.

Hong-Ki Kim

Hong-Ki Kim is a South Korean attorney working at Antitrust and Competition Practice Group and M&A team in Kim&Chang, which is the largest law firm in South Korea. His job specialty is Antitrust and IPR. Prior to joining the law firm, from 2003-2008, Mr. Kim was a deputy director of the Korea Fair Trade Commission(KFTC), responsible for competition policy and enforcement, including investigation on cartel and market dominance abuse activities, M&A review policy and enforcement, and litigation. He was awarded KFTC Minister's Awards for Excellence in 2005 and 2007.

Mr. Kim is a LL.M. student at the George Washington Law School. He earned B.L. degree at Korea University Law School in 2000 and M.S. degree in the field of IPR at the same Law School in 2008.

Xin Zhang

Xin Zhang is a PHD candidate at University of International Business and Economics (UIBE) and a researcher at the Competition Law Centre (CLC) in UIBE where he organizes academic conference on competition policies and cooperates in various projects.

Mr. Zhang is a Fulbright Visiting Researcher at George Washington University. His primary specialization is Chinese Anti-Monopoly Law and competition policy. His secondary specialization is the interaction of IPR and antitrust law. He has worked on several projects and published papers on these topics.

Milagros De Pomar

Ms. Milagros De Pomar studied her Bachelor of Laws at the Pontificia Universidad Católica del Perú, where she also obtained the title of Lawyer (with the mention of "very good"). She was a in-house lawyer at IBM Peru for more than 4 years, being in charge of all complex negotiations with private clients, government contracting, legal counseling for risk minimization and corporate compliance. As part of her job, she also worked in international projects that involved many of the Latin American countries, and trained most of the company's areas on IBM's terms and conditions and business conduct guidelines.

In 2011, she was awarded with the Thomas Buergethal Scholarship at The George Washington University Law School and studied a Master of Laws Degree, which she completed in May 2012. She is a member of the Callao Bar Association in Peru, and since last August she has been a Student Fellow at the Competition Law Center.

Andrew Strumfels

Andrew Strumfels is currently a third year student at The George Washington University Law School. He is a vice president and founding member of the Antitrust Law Association at George Washington University.

Andrew has performed research in international competition law and a historical survey of antitrust practice in the United States. He has experience as a legal intern at the Federal Trade Commission, the National Archives and Records Administration, and as a judicial extern in Delaware State Court. He received a B.A. from Franklin and Marshall College in 2009, with a major in Business Administration - Psychology.

Douglas Francken

Doug Francken earned his B.S. in Commerce at The University of Virginia's McIntire School of Commerce in 2009, with concentrations in Finance and Marketing. Before enrolling in law school, Mr. Francken worked as a Business Analyst at Northrop Grumman Corporation. He expects to graduate from The George Washington University Law School in May 2013, and then pursue a career in national defense.

At GW Law, Mr. Francken currently serves as a research assistant for Professor William Kovacic in the field of Antitrust law. He is a founding member and vice president of the GW Law Antitrust Law Association. He is a member of the American Intellectual Property Law Association (AIPLA) Quarterly Journal and the Alternative Dispute Resolution Board. Mr. Francken, along with his co-counsel, won the 2013 GW Law Client Counseling Competition. He resides in Washington, D.C.

Andrew James

Andrew James graduated in 2010 from the University of Tennessee, summa cum laude, with a double major in Religious Studies and Political Science. He is currently working on completing his J.D. at The George Washington University Law School, where he will graduate in May of this year.

At GW he is involved with the Mock Trial and Alternative Dispute Resolution boards and serves as Vice President of External Affairs for the Antitrust Law Association. This semester, Andrew is interning with the DC Office of the Attorney General in the Equity division.